

entj

LOGICAL
 OBJECTIVE
 ANALYTICAL CRITICAL
 CONCEPTUAL
 PROBLEM SOLVER
 CURIOUS
 PLANNER
 SYSTEMATIC EFFICIENT
 DECISIVE
 SELF-CONFIDENT
 ASSERTIVE
 FRANK DIRECT
 CLEAR
 FORCEFUL
 TOUGH
 FAIR
 ACTIVE

MYERS-BRIGGS TYPE INDICATOR® TYPE DESCRIPTION

Karen Bannister

Extraversion | Intuition | Thinking | Judging

ENTJs are usually ready to assume leadership of whatever project interests them. They develop and implement comprehensive systems to solve problems. They enjoy long-term planning and then organizing to achieve results and can be forceful in presenting their ideas.

They value home, family, health, financial security, achievement, and learning.

+1 800 624 1765 | www.themyersbriggs.com

A blue diamond shape containing the lowercase letters "entj" in white, representing the ENTJ personality type.

Characteristics of ENTJs

- ENTJs set goals and then try to organize everything and everyone to meet those goals.
- They are logical and analytical decision makers.
- ENTJs are usually well informed and well read, and they enjoy expanding their knowledge and passing it on to others.
- They are strategic visionaries who enjoy planning for the future.
- They can make tough decisions when necessary.

ENTJs with Others

- ENTJs enjoy, and are energized by, stimulating interactions with people.
- Their love of ideas can pull them into wide-ranging explorations and discussions.
- They set their own standards and are forceful in applying these to themselves and others.
- They think conduct should be ruled by logic, and they govern their behavior accordingly.
- ENTJs will often challenge others' statements and behaviors as a way to learn. Because of this, they can overpower people at times.
- They admire and seek out people who stand up to them, say what they think, and argue persuasively.

ENTJs at Work

- ENTJs are natural leaders and organization builders; they enjoy executive action and long-range planning.
- They quickly identify illogical and inefficient procedures and feel a strong urge to correct them—to organize people and situations to get them moving in the right direction.
- ENTJs use their Intuition to see possibilities and use them in making decisions and plans.
- They are likely to be conceptual, innovative theorizers and planners.
- They are action oriented and strategic—they think ahead, anticipate problems, devise broad plans and systems, and marshal the human and material resources needed to achieve goals.
- They are often found in executive jobs; the opportunity to strategize, organize, and lead is more important than the particular job or industry.
- ENTJs are seldom content in jobs that require routine maintenance activities, or in work environments in which there is confusion or inefficiency.

Potential Blind Spots for ENTJs

- If ENTJs have not developed their Thinking preference, they may not have a reliable way to evaluate their insights and make plans. Then their decisions will tend to be inconsistent or always changing.
- They also may make decisions too quickly, without considering alternatives or exploring possibilities.
- If their Intuition is not developed, they may not stop and listen to others; their decisiveness then may become dictatorial.
- ENTJs may not take others' values into account, relying too much on their own logical approach.
- ENTJs may not be good at expressing appreciation to others.
- Focusing so much on the big picture may lead them to overlook important details needed to accomplish their goals.

Your MBTI® personality type is ENTJ

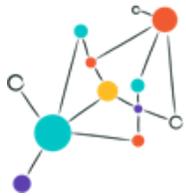

ENTJ

Extraversion Intuition Thinking Judging

ENTJs are usually ready to assume leadership of whatever project interests them. They develop and implement comprehensive systems to solve problems. They enjoy long-term planning and then organizing to achieve results and can be forceful in presenting their ideas.

They value home, family, health, financial security, achievement, and learning.

	Conceptual	Systematic
Logical	<hr/>	<hr/>	Assertive	Forceful
<hr/>			<hr/>	<hr/>
Objective	Problem Solver	Efficient	Frank	Tough
<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>
Analytical	Curious	Decisive	Direct	Fair
<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>
Critical	Planner	Self-Confident	Clear	Active
<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>

Characteristics of ENTJs

- ENTJs set goals and then try to organize everything and everyone to meet those goals.
- They are logical and analytical decision makers.
- ENTJs are usually well informed and well read, and they enjoy expanding their knowledge and passing it on to others.
- They are strategic visionaries who enjoy planning for the future.
- They can make tough decisions when necessary.

Explore courses on personal development »

ENTJs with others

- ENTJs enjoy, and are energized by, stimulating interactions with people.
- Their love of ideas can pull them into wide-ranging explorations and discussions.
- They set their own standards and are forceful in applying these to themselves and others.
- They think conduct should be ruled by logic, and they govern their behavior accordingly.
- ENTJs will often challenge others' statements and behaviors as a way to learn. Because of this, they can overpower people at times.
- They admire and seek out people who stand up to them, say what they think, and argue persuasively.

Explore courses on getting along »

ENTJs at work

- ENTJs are natural leaders and organization builders; they enjoy executive action and long-range planning.
- They quickly identify illogical and inefficient procedures and feel a strong urge to correct them—to organize people and situations to get them moving in the right direction.
- ENTJs use their Intuition to see possibilities and use them in making decisions and plans.
- They are likely to be conceptual, innovative theorizers and planners.
- They are action oriented and strategic—they think ahead, anticipate problems, devise broad plans and systems, and marshal the human and material resources needed to achieve goals.
- They are often found in executive jobs; the opportunity to strategize, organize, and lead is more important than the particular job or industry.
- ENTJs are seldom content in jobs that require routine maintenance activities, or in work environments in which there is confusion or inefficiency.

Explore courses on careers »

Potential blind spots for ENTJs

- If ENTJs have not developed their Thinking preference, they may not have a reliable way to evaluate their insights and make plans. Then their decisions will tend to be inconsistent or always changing.
- They also may make decisions too quickly, without considering alternatives or exploring possibilities.

- If their Intuition is not developed, they may not stop and listen to others; their decisiveness then may become dictatorial.
- ENTJs may not take others' values into account, relying too much on their own logical approach.
- ENTJs may not be good at expressing appreciation to others.
- Focusing so much on the big picture may lead them to overlook important details needed to accomplish their goals.

Explore courses on well being »